

Trade Deals Harm Farmers & Ranchers

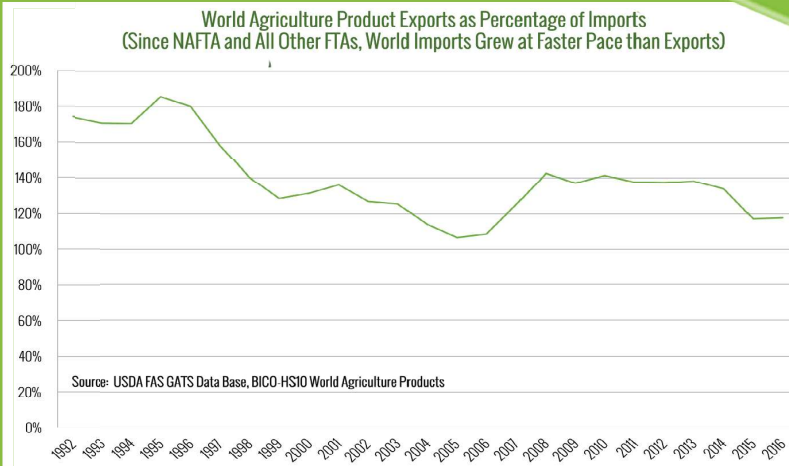

Rural America's Economy Can Grow by Rebuilding Food Supply Chains

ONE

American agriculture is diminishing as a net export sector. Food and fiber imports have surged more than exports during the free trade agreement era.

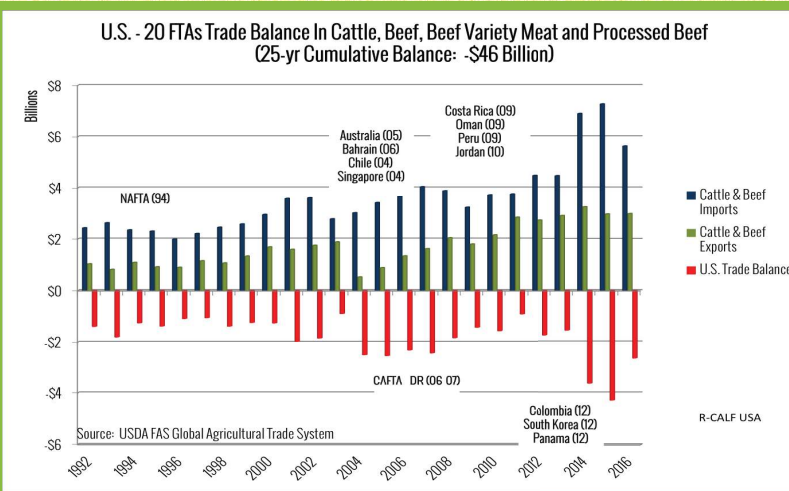

SOLUTION

Rural America has the capacity to grow wealth and employment through agriculture.

TWO

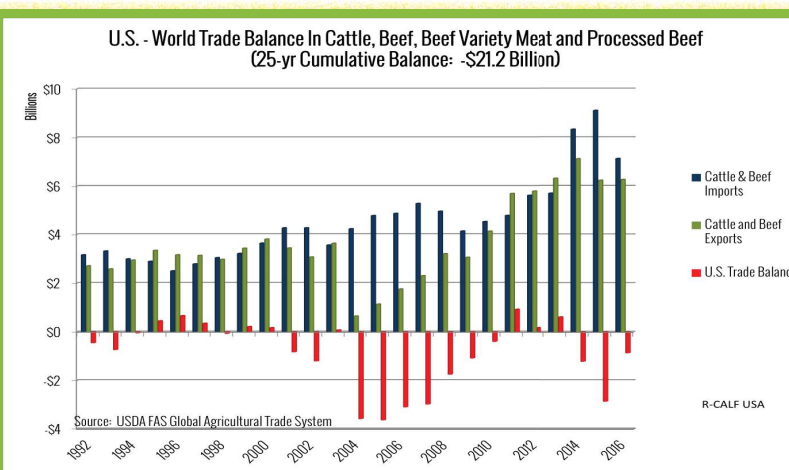

The cattle supply chain is the biggest sector in agriculture. Our trade deficit with free trade agreement countries in cattle and beef is worsening.

US trade policy should prioritize net exports in all ag sectors.

THREE

Beef and cattle trade has performed better with non-free trade agreement countries.

Rules of origin for meats should designate where animals are born, raised, and slaughtered
